Video of captured Canadian released

Toronto man, 26, booked two-week trip to Afghanistan last fall and never returned home

The Taliban is threatening to put a 26-year-old Toronto man on trial for espionage unless Canada meets its list of demands.

But the federal government is saying little about the threat or about a video released yesterday by the militant group that shows Colin Rutherford telling an off-screen interviewer that he had been travelling in Afghanistan as a tourist when he was apprehended.

The Department of Foreign Affairs said little about the video.

"Canadian officials are working with Afghan authorities to assist the family in securing the safe release of their loved one," Foreign Affairs spokesperson Lisa Monette wrote in an email.

Rutherford answers a series of questions on the video. He said he came to Afghanistan as a tourist.

He said he spent two days in the capital city of Kabul before travelling to the eastern city of Ghazni.

"I was apprehended the second day after arriving in Ghazni," he said.

"The evidence and documents found in (Rutherford's) possession had shown that he entered Afghanistan for spying purposes and was an active agent, gathering intelligence on the Taliban."
ZABIULLAH MUJAHID, TALIBAN SPOKESMAN

When asked about his religion, Rutherford said, "I don't have a religion. I am I guess what you'd call agnostic."

He denied working for the Canadian government.

The interviewer asked him: "How were you treated by the Taliban?" Rutherford answered, "I was treated humanely," and the video ends. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Mothers want a say in child care

Roughly 1.2 million children younger than 12 in the province with moms in the workplace, says Ontario Coalition for Better Child Care ● There are 236,988 licensed child-care spaces

Gathered inside a colourful playroom at Network Child Care Services on Ossington Avenue yesterday morning, several mothers voiced their concerns about inaccessible and unaffordable child care in Toronto.

They were there to help launch Mothers for Child Care, a task force that will collect opinions, concerns and data related to the child-care system in Toronto.

"There seems to be a lot of talk amongst policy-makers about child care but not a lot of talk that includes mothers," said Sarah Blackstock, advocacy and communications director for YWCA Toronto.

"We want safe, affordable and accessible daycare (and) we're not getting it."
JENNIFER KIM, MOTHER

The task force, supported by the YWCA Toronto, the Toronto Women's City Alliance and other community organizations, will conduct meetings and hearings across the city, as well as run an online survey. It will analyze the results and release a public report on Father's Day, June 19.

The group acknowledges the vital role fathers play in securing affordable child care. However, this task force will focus specifically on mothers, and how insufficient child care keeps them from returning to paid work or continuing their education, Blackstock said.

Look up daycare reports online

Ontario parents can now look up inspection reports for daycare centres online.

The province is expanding its child-care website to include up to three years of inspections.

The reports show whether a daycare stores food and medication properly, provides enough supervision and conducts enough fire drills, for example. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Are 905 cities on the right financial track?

An overview of 2011 budgets across the Greater Toronto Area

A scan of city budgets across the GTA might leave some residents wondering why they face a steep tax increase for the first time in years while residents elsewhere get a tax freeze in 2011.

The truth is some cities have planned their growth, found efficiencies and innovated better than others. Meanwhile, reliance on development fees and political points from years of low taxes has left other cities reaching down to the bottom of depleted reserve funds, even as residents are being slapped with large tax hikes.

Although many municipalities have gotten into the habit of dipping into reserve funds to cover operating cost deficits in their budgets, they are typically used as rainy-day funds when money is needed for something like a new roof on a recreation centre.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

In the 905 area

- Fees This year's zero per cent increase in Markham includes no cuts to services but a small increase in adult user fees for recreational facilities.
- Increase In Mississauga, residents will see a 5.8 per cent increase for the city's portion of the 2011 bill.
- Brampton It had $100 million in its Community Investment Fund just a few years ago, but city treasurer Mo Lewis told residents that, "Our reserve balances are getting low."

▶ The perpetually animated Frank Scarpitti, mayor of Markham, sits perched at the edge of his desk at Markham's civic centre, speaking of the town's future growth. The popular politician won 83 per cent of the vote in 2006 and 85 per cent in 2010.

Peaceful pot supporters march for marijuana

The funnel cakes were definitely a hit.

It was no surprise that plates of deep-fried dough sprinkled with white icing sugar became immensely popular at a festival attended by 25,000 pot enthusiasts who spent the day smoking joints on the lawn at Queen's Park.

Especially since 20,000 of them worked up an appetite while parading across downtown streets with banners that demanded better access to medical marijuana or the decriminalization of weed itself.

As teenagers lit up among university students and some adults, organizer Gabe Simms called the annual event a celebration of Canada's Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

"People here are from all walks of life," Simms said, "and whether they be lawyers or students, in some cases youth, they all at the end of the day believe Canada has to make some changes regarding the prohibition (of marijuana) and the difficulty for sick people to have access to medical marijuana."

He cited a recent Ontario Superior Court ruling that found the federal medical marijuana program unconstitutional because patients are largely prevented from legally accessing the drugs they need.

Graffiti in Toronto

- Location: Near Queen Street West between Soho Street and Ossington Avenue.
- Description: A primer on graffiti, focusing on Toronto's ever-changing Graffiti Alley.
- Fascinating Fact: Graffiti Alley is perhaps best known as the spot where the CBC's Rick Mercer tapes his "rants."

Braggarts, Laggards, Grumps, and Petty Despots: The pain of uncivil neighbours in an urban setting

- Location: Greenwood Park and surrounding area.
- Description: An examination of nasty and anti-social neighbours. The walk began at a bench dedicated to Jeffrey Baldwin, the five-year-old boy who died of starvation at his grandparents' home in the neighbourhood in 2002. The case is used as an example of how a neighbourhood can fail.
- Host: Diane Dyson has been giving the walk for five years to draw to light the qualities that a good neighbourhood needs.

Sports Trail: Calling all Hockey fans

- Location: Mississauga Sports Hall of Fame and Hershey Centre.
- Description: An exploration of the hall of fame, which features an assortment of colourful jackets worn by Mississauga resident and bombastic hockey commentator Don Cherry. A look at the Sports Zone complex and the Hershey Centre, which will host the Memorial Cup later this month.
- Host: Catherine Holland, executive director of the Mississauga Sports Council, wanted to expose some of the local facilities that are unknown to many residents.
- Fascinating fact: The Sports Zone has an indoor full-size FIFA soccer pitch, complete with artificial turf, that can be split into four separate fields.

Aggie's Wildflowers

- Location: Lambton Mills neighbourhood, east side of Humber River, south of Dundas Street West.
- Description: Agnes Dunbar Moodie Fitzgibbon illustrated the 1867 book Canadian Wildflowers, written by her aunt, Catherine Parr Traill, which examined flowers in the Baby Point and Humber Valleys areas. The walk explored the history of Agnes' world, nearly a century and a half later.
- Host: Storyteller and heritage advocate Madeleine McDowell has lived in the area for all of her 70 years.
- Fascinating fact: McDowell's great uncle was among what she called a "cabal" of school trustees who kidnapped the area reeve in 1932 to get action on local needs during the Great Depression. They released the reeve after a few hours and attention to their demands.

Fowl Tour: Backyard Chickens of Toronto

- Location: Northwest Toronto neighbourhoods, near Dufferin and Dupont streets.
- Description: A bike tour of five backyard chicken coops, which are illegal in Toronto because of a bylaw that prohibits keeping chickens in the city.
- Host: Lorraine Johnson, who reaps eggs from chickens in her own backyard, said she wanted to debunk urban myths that chickens are smelly, dirty, noisy and a disturbance to neighbours.
- Fascinating fact: The first stop on the tour had a coop, but no chickens. The illegal birds were seized by city bylaw officers in November.

Andrew Cash goes from punk to politics

Andrew Cash is heading to Ottawa as the NDP MP for Davenport.

Cash — rocker, writer, and now MP — may well be urban Toronto personified. Like many these days, he has never had a job that came with a pension and a benefits package.

He is promising to speak up for the riding and the city, and stand up for the worker, the underdog and the downtrodden — something, really, that he has done through music ever since he was a teenager growing up in Scarborough.

JIM RANKIN/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶Andrew Cash

Cash, 48, was in an '80s Toronto punk band called L'Etranger, a group of Catholic boys who worshipped at the church of Joe Strummer and The Clash and belted out songs of protest over social injustices of the day.

Know who else was in that band?

Charlie (Chuck) Angus, newly re-elected NDP MP for Timmins-James Bay.

Yeah, the band is about to get back together — this time it's on the floor of the House of Commons. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Obama won't accuse Pakistan of harbouring

U.S. president talks in interview about bin Laden's 'support network' U.S. administration and lawmakers rebut calls for an end of American aid to Pakistan

Osama bin Laden benefitted from "some sort of support network" inside Pakistan, U.S. President Barack Obama said in a broadcast interview yesterday, but he added it is not clear whether government officials knew the terrorist leader was living inside their country when U.S. commandos killed him in a raid last weekend.

"We don't know whether there might have been some people inside of government, people outside of government, and that's something that we have to investigate and, more importantly, the Pakistani government has to investigate," Obama said in an interview for CBS' news magazine 60 Minutes.

Senator John Kerry, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said: "Everybody has to understand that even in the getting of Osama bin Laden, the Pakistanis were helpful. We have people on the ground in Pakistan because they allow us to have them." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

- Senator John Kerry strongly defended Barack Obama's decision to order the raid, and the shooting death of Osama bin Laden.
- The Obama administration has offered shifting accounts of the raid.

BIN LADEN RAID: AFTERMATH

Mysterious twin blasts shake up Abbottabad

Witnesses say two loud explosions rocked the Pakistani town where Osama bin Laden was killed in a U.S. raid.

The source of the blasts were not immediately clear.

An Associated Press team at the compound where bin Laden was living before the April 29 raid saw no signs of unusual activity yesterday.

There had been speculation that authorities might demolish the house in Abbottabad to try to stop the intense media attention on the town.

▶ Hundreds of Christians and Muslims hurl stones at each other yesterday during clashes near the Corniche in Cairo.

12 killed in religious riots

Egyptians say military, police did almost nothing to intervene in frenzy

Relations between Egypt's Muslims and Christians degenerated to a new low yesterday after riots overnight left 12 people dead and a church burned, adding to the disorder of the country's post-revolution transition to democracy.

The attack on the church was the latest sign of assertiveness by an extreme, ultraconservative movement of Muslims known as Salafis, whose increasing hostility toward Egypt's Coptic Christians over the past few months has met with little interference from the country's military rulers.

Salafis have been blamed for other recent attacks on Christians and others they don't approve of. In one attack, a Christian man had an ear cut off for renting an apartment to a Muslim woman suspected of involvement in prostitution.

The latest violence erupted in fresh clashes yesterday between Muslims and Christians who pelted each other with stones in another part of Cairo. The violence also pointed to the weakness of the armed forces council that has taken temporary control of the country after Hosni Mubarak's Feb. 11 ouster from the presidency.

The bloodshed began Saturday around sundown when word spread around the neighbourhood that a Christian woman who married a Muslim had been abducted and was being kept in the Virgin Mary Church against her will.

The report, which was never confirmed by local religious figures, sent a large mob of Muslims toward the church. The two sides accused each other's camp of firing first.

B.C. man still sought as wife recovers

Authorities actively searching for 59-year-old man
Aren't ready to turn rescue into recovery mission

A Penticton, B.C., woman who survived seven weeks stranded in the remote mountains of northeastern Nevada is spending Mother's Day with her family as a search for her husband continues.

Hospital officials in Idaho told The Canadian Press that Rita Chretien was "very upbeat" and doing well with her family around her.

Chretien and her husband were travelling to Las Vegas when their van got stuck in mud on a remote U.S. forest road in mid-March. Her husband set out for help, but the 56-year-old woman survived in the van on melted snow, small amounts of trail mix, and prayer.

She was found Friday by hunters near a national forest in northeastern Nevada.

The search continued yesterday for her husband, Albert, who set out for help on foot March 22, armed with a GPS unit. The area the couple were in is a tough one to search — terrain is rough and cellphone service is non-existent.

Police mounted a search in April but failed to turn up any sign.

12-year-old killed in Syrian crackdown

Boy identified as Kasem Zuhair Alahmad Uprising biggest challenge to 40 years of Assad family rule

Gunfire and shelling rattled a city in central Syria yesterday and killed a 12-year-old boy, as President Bashar Assad's autocratic regime expanded its military crackdown on a seven-week uprising by sending tanks and reinforcements to key areas, activists said.

Activists said authorities also arrested a 10-year-old boy, apparently to punish his parents, and filed charges against a leading opposition figure who is suffering from cancer.

The exact circumstances of the boy's death in the city of Homs were unclear. Like several other trouble spots, the government has answered protests there by sending in tanks and soldiers to seal it off and cutting phone service to leave it even more isolated.

The continued crackdown suggests Assad's regime is determined to end the uprising by force and intimidation, despite rapidly escalating international outrage and a death toll that has topped 580 civilians since the unrest began in mid-March, according to rights groups.

Homes. Flooded

▶ A man and a woman make their way along a street immersed by flood waters from the Richelieu River yesterday in the town of Saint-Blaise-Sur-Richelieu, Que.

GRAHAM HUGHES/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Roughly 1,000 forced from their houses

Flood waters in Quebec continue to decline and authorities expect levels to drop about four centimetres per day in the coming week if the weather co-operates. The Richelieu River south of Montreal still hasn't returned to normal in most areas and many residents are still waiting for the go-ahead to return home.

Giving women a voice — and a place to call home

More than 500 women, and a dozen men, expected to attend the first-ever national conference on affordable housing for women

KYLE REA
@METRONEWS.CA

They are a group we don't hear about — women who stay in abusive relationships or those who couch surf with a friend, anything to stay off the street.

But homelessness, and the need for affordable housing for women, doesn't appear to be on the radar in Canada.

Today, however, marks the beginning of the All Our Sisters Conference at the London Convention Centre, which hopes to change that.

Until Wednesday, people from across the country will gather to talk about issues like homelessness and affordable housing for women and what can be done about it.

Organizers hope to create a national network of citizens who will work to change the situation for women countrywide.

Conference co-chairwoman Shelley Yeo said it's a key problem because women who are homeless are often invisible.

"They may be couch surfing or staying with friends, family. Often, women will stay in an unsafe relationship just because she doesn't want to take her kids and go to a shelter. It doesn't feel like a good solution, but for lots of women it is a good solution."

But a shelter is a short-term solution since women need a permanent home.

But without a national affordable housing strategy, and not enough homes to go around, getting out of that situation is difficult.

A key part of the conference will be stories, Yeo noted. Organizers provided money so 100 women who have experienced homelessness could attend.

HAVE YOU SEEN ADS LIKE THIS?

"MONEY PROBLEMS?"

"CREDIT PROBLEMS? Pay NO interest"

"Reduce your debt by up to 80%"

Do they sound too good to be true? That's because they are only telling you HALF OF THE STORY! The procedure you are being sold is called a consumer proposal and may ONLY be administered by a licenced trustee in bankruptcy. After you pay these "consultants" a fee – hundreds, sometimes thousands of dollars – they refer you to a trustee to actually do the work (their ads don't tell you that).

Before you sign any forms, before you pay any fees, "google" consumer proposals and see for yourself…

In order for a consumer proposal to be accepted you need to offer your creditors:

1) More money than they would get if you filed for bankrutpcy; and
2) Enough money to make it "worth your creditors time" – currently that is around 1/3 of what you owe

There's no mystery, there's no clever deals or negotiation going on. These guys never actually speak to your creditors. So why are you paying them a fee?

The choice is yours – if after you speak to a trustee, you still think there's a reason to use one of these "consulting" firms then go ahead – to date, we've never heard of anyone going back once they hear the whole story…

Still not convinced? Their first meeting is free – before you go back a second time and start paying their fees give us a call. We'll walk you through all of your options and then you can decide what's best for you and your family.

One more thing – there are NO upfront fees to file a consumer proposal – if someone wants you to pay a fee BEFORE they file your paperwork then you aren't dealing with the right people!

China steps up to the plate

But no great leap forward expected heading into U.S. trade talks

Five years after the United States and China started regular economic talks, fast-growing Beijing might have the upper hand this week in the latest round of discussions between the world's two biggest economies.

China faces threats of penalties against goods shipped to its largest foreign market unless it does more to end what U.S. manufacturers say are unfair trade practices, including currency manipulation, that have cost U.S. jobs.

At the same time, America's biggest foreign creditor wants assurances that its $1.2 trillion in U.S. Treasury holdings are safe despite uncertainty in Washington over how much money the U.S. can borrow to pay its bills. If Congress fails to increase that borrowing limit before August, that probably would send interest rates soaring and reduce the value of those Chinese investments.

While analysts don't foresee major breakthroughs at the talks today and tomorrow, they agree China's expanding economic power will give it greater leverage. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Warner Music being sold amid industry decline

New owner may have to contend with new music services from Google, Apple More cost cuts expected

Warner Music Group Corp., the world's third-largest recording company with such artists as Eric Clapton, Michael Buble and Paramore, is being sold for about $1.3 billion as a global decline in CD sales weighs down the industry.

Len Blavatnik's Access Industries will pay $8.25 a share and take on about $2 billion in Warner debt and $320 million in cash. The total values the company at about $3 billion.

The deal comes as U.S. sales of recorded music have flattened to half what they were about a decade ago. Rising download sales last year were offset by the collapse in the popularity of ringtones, and CD sales continue to fall.

MARK LENNIHAN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Edgar Bronfman Jr.

That means Blavatnik will have to cut staff and other expenses and hope a new wave of innovation will carry digital music sales higher.

The Russian-born Blavatnik, 53, is a former board member who was part of the group that bought Warner Music in 2004. He has about a two per cent stake in the company.

The sale ends a seven-year run by investors led by Edgar Bronfman Jr., who purchased the company from Time Warner Inc. with private equity backing for $2.6 billion. They took the company public a year later to help recoup their investment. There are now just 3,700 employees, down from 5,100 in late 2003.

Bronfman will remain CEO after the sale.

AN ARTIST IN EVERY SENSE OF THE WORD

URBAN COMPASS

ANDREW WALLACE
METRO TORONTO

Curtis Santiago is nothing if not a creator. He's a singer, a songwriter, a musician and a performer. He paints and he sculpts. He makes tiny ring box dioramas and he designs silk scarves. He's an artist in every sense of the word, but he calls himself a dreamer, nothing but a dreamer.

"My visions come to me while I'm awake, while I'm asleep," he says. "It's the whole idea of just creating that gets me off, that gets me going, that gets me charged. I'm in a constant state of 'let's make something out of nothing.'"

And he's done exactly that his whole life. He started when he was young, his mother decorating his room with long sheets of blank paper so wee Curtis could dance about, crayon in hand, drawing on the walls, singing all the while.

"Now, at just 31 years of age, (Curtis) Santiago has practised his art around the world and back again. A decade ago he was deejaying and emceeing in Europe and the Caribbean. A few years later, in Vancouver, he started his own band — Curtis Santiago and the Vendetta Republic — electrifying audiences with an eclectic mix of soul, funk, hip hop and pop.

He sang, he danced, he screamed and sometimes he stripped — and then, as he is wont to do, he moved on.

A couple years ago, he travelled to Toronto with his best friend and his lead guitarist, Mike Schlosser. The two started to experiment with his sound and soon Santiago was collaborating with the edgiest, most avant garde names in urban music in the biggest American markets.

Fast forward to the present and, once again, Santiago has switched gears. He follows his creative calling wherever it takes him and right now he is all about his visual art.

On May 18, he will be the sole featured artist at Artrageous 3, hosted by Partners in Art and the Art Gallery of Ontario. The event is homage to street art, inspired in part by the popularity of Exit The Giftshop, a documentary about Bansky, and American artists Radiant Child.

There, Santiago will be populating the space with sculptures, collages of things he has found on the street and paintings. He will also be indulging the audience with a bit of his performance art, creating 10-minute collage portraits for patrons in the style of the street artists who create quick cartoons for passersby.

"My art represents the life I'm living," he says. "I have to write from experience, I have to create from experience. So that's why I live life like I'm in a movie, living it to the limit, loving every minute of it."

AMSTERDAM, NETHERLANDS. Denmark earns the biggest share of its national revenue from producing windmills and other clean technologies, the United States is rapidly expanding its clean-tech sector, but no country can match China's pace of growth, according to a new report obtained by The Associated Press.

China's production of green technologies has grown by a remarkable 77 per cent per year, according to the report, which was commissioned by the World Wildlife Fund for Nature and which will be unveiled today at an industry conference in Amsterdam.

Denmark derives 3.1 per cent of its gross domestic product from renewable energy technology and energy efficiency, or about $9.4 billion US, the report said. China is the largest producer in money terms, earning more than $64 billion, or 1.4 per cent of its gross domestic product.

The U.S. ranks 17th in the production of clean technologies with 0.3 per cent of GDP, or $45 billion.

I do, I do, I do, I do, I do, I do, I do ...

About 350 couples in Bolivia were married according to Indian customs and traditions in a colourful Andean mass wedding with President Evo Morales presiding as best man.

Saturday's ceremony was held at a colosseum in La Paz, the capital, that was adorned with large white flowers and indigenous banners. Several bands serenaded the couples.

Indian religious leaders presided over the wedding as did symbolically Pachamama — the earth deity of the Aymara and Quechua races of Bolivia's highlands Indians.

And Morales gave a speech to the couples, who crowded the arena's floor wearing multicoloured native ponchos and hats.

Before the ceremony, each couple married in a civil ceremony.

Seinfeld discovers the world wide web

Famous comedian decides it's time to get online Why now is the perfect time to launch his unique website — and it has nothing to do with flaunting his past fashion choices

DOROTHY ROBINSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Jerry Seinfeld has launched a website, jerryseinfeld.com, that will have clips of his old performances.

Most working comedians know the importance of having a web presence to list upcoming events, promotional material, and hopefully develop a much-needed fan base. But when you're a comic on the level of Jerry Seinfeld, do you really need a way to promote yourself? Well, yes — just in a different way.

"I wanted a very restricted concept; I didn't want to have a site with like mugs t-shirts, concert dates. I find that annoying," he says about how his new site, jerryseinfeld.com, will be different. "I just couldn't wait any longer and I finally came up with an idea that I liked."

Instead, the site, which launched on Friday, is a repository of nearly every recorded comedy appearance from Seinfeld — a career that spans 36 years. One of Friday's introductory clips was from his first time on The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson in 1981 — posted 30 years to the day.

Seinfeld, who is very hands-on with the site, felt it was important not to post all clips at once (there are more than 1,000). Rather, he will pick three a day to profile.

"I'm almost more proud of the fashion than I am of the comedy," he quips about digging deep into his archives. "My fashion choices were so good, you are not even going to notice the clothes. In the '70s and '80s I look good — it's the '90s where my choices start to get questionable."

A comedian through and through — he shrugged off questions about acting in any new movies or TV shows ("acting is for people who don't have anything to say") — he told us about sneaking into New York comedy clubs every few weeks to keep honing his act before he tours. In fact, one reason for launching jerryseinfeld.com is to attract a younger fan base.

"This site is really about my attempt to cultivate the world of stand-up comedy with young people," he says with a slight Seinfeld-smirk. "The same way the skinheads and Klu Klux Klan do — you gotta get them indoctrinated young. So really, I'm taking a page from their book."

Branagh gets inspired by Hopkins

After 30 years in film as an actor and director, Kenneth Branagh is right where he should be.

As his latest directorial effort, Thor, hits theatres Friday, the 50-year-old Branagh said his experience on both sides of the camera is lining up perfectly with his appetite, which inspires a new enthusiasm for each craft.

"It's like returning to when I was 16 and first did a school play and thought, 'Oh, this is what I should do. This is what I'm supposed to do,"' he said from a hotel suite where he was promoting the Marvel movie.

"Somehow I feel as though, at least for this little tiny moment in my life perhaps, I've landed back in some moment where I feel, if nothing else, it's right what I'm doing. For me," he said.

Branagh commanded a cast that included Oscar winners Natalie Portman and Anthony Hopkins in Thor, a superhero epic that spans planets and otherworldly realms. Then, while editing and putting the finishing touches on the film, he stole away to play Lawrence Olivier opposite Michelle Williams' Marilyn Monroe in the indie flick My Week With Marilyn.

Playing such a weighty role during Thor post-production "was something of a stretch, I have to tell you," Branagh said.

But Branagh said he delighted in the experience.

"I ran at it with a relish for acting which was borne out of partly, literally seeing Tony Hopkins at work, and the others, but also talking to Tony, who had worked with Olivier himself," Branagh said. "(He) knew him well, and had many war stories, many intimate observations of the way Olivier was, and that to some extent gave me the confidence to try and do it."

Branagh says that when he sees actors performing at their peak, he wants to act, and when he sees directors do beautiful work, he yearns to direct. "I realize now I have a lot of experience in both, and it's exciting to try and use it."

TV viewers wait to see for whom the axe falls

Shows 'on the bubble' are 50/50 for renewal Rests on how many new shows networks pick up for next season

It's that time of year again — TV producers are holding their breath, waiting to see which shows get picked up. For fans, too, it can be an anxious stretch. Will there be more episodes of a favourite program?

That's very much in question when it comes to the fate of one of the most popular shows on Canadian television this season: $#*! My Dad Says. The CBS sitcom, which stars Canadian TV icon William Shatner as a cranky, retired father coping with a grown son who's moved back home, did much better in Canada than it did in the U.S.

That's mainly because CTV ran it right after the most popular show in the country, The Big Bang Theory, where new episodes routinely drew well over two million viewers a week. In the U.S., it got no such lift, and thus languished on the CBS schedule.

The same was true of The Defenders, the Friday night Jim Belushi law drama. It clicked on CTV but only did so-so in the States. Prognosis: "On the bubble" for next season. CTV had another winner Fridays with the CBS import Blue Bloods, starring Tom Selleck. Again, not such a hit in the States (especially among viewers under 50, the demographic more coveted by advertisers), although late word is that it is a good bet for renewal.

The U.S. networks will officially announce their fall schedules May 16 to 19 in New York. Canadian "upfront" announcements will come at the very end of this month and the beginning of June. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Paula Abdul and Simon Cowell

Paula Abdul is officially going back to work for Simon Cowell, as she recently closed a deal to serve as a judge on Cowell's American version of X Factor, according to the Hollywood Reporter.

Abdul joins fellow judges Cowell, producer L.A. Reid and Cheryl Cole, who served as a judge on the U.K. version of the show.

The deal was reportedly signed just in time for Abdul to start work taping the show's judging rounds.

Sheen tutors sons on ABCs

Charlie Sheen had custody of his twin sons for the weekend, the first time he's seen them since a judge revoked his custody in March.

To celebrate, he decided to spend some quality time with the boys at ex-wife Brooke Mueller's expense, he tells TMZ. "I am teaching them words, because they're speaking now," Sheen says. "I'm teaching them the word 'rehab' so they always know where their mom is." METRO

Jolie's biggest critics: Her kids

While she may be rich, famous and beautiful, Angelina Jolie certainly isn't without her insecurities — and her kids aren't helping.

The actress tells USA Today that, besides herself, her biggest critics are her six children.

"They'll sit in a room and say, 'That's just not funny,'" she says.

Jolie developed some new insecurities working on her latest film, Kung Fu Panda 2, since the work only called for her voice.

"You know, when you hear your own voice, you can find it quite boring and uninteresting," she explains. "Suddenly, you get very shy that your voice is not enough."

The gender bender

Today is Pink Toenail Day for families who promote modern interpretations of gender roles
A controversial J. Crew ad inspired the day by celebrating a boy's love of the colour pink

If a girl wants to try her hand at baseball or ice hockey, she's likely to be praised as plucky. But if a boy likes the colour pink? Well, that's a toenail of a different colour.

Last month, J. Crew unleashed a furor when a promotion depicted its creative director, Jenna Lyons, painting her five-year-old son Beckett's toenails with pink nail polish. "Lucky for me, I ended up with a boy whose favourite colour is pink," the caption read.

Dr. Keith Ablow, a psychiatrist and regular guest on Fox News, didn't approve.

"It may be fun and games now, Jenna, but at least put some money aside for psychotherapy for the kid," he wrote on Foxnews.com.

"This is a dramatic example of the way that our culture is being encouraged to abandon all trappings of gender identity."

In fact, Lyons and her son had stepped on a cultural land mine. Gender stereotypes for America's children are less rigid than in the past, but they remain a pervasive part of popular culture and a benchmark for parents. Moreover, the changes in recent decades have been more dramatic for girls than boys.

"I try not to overemphasize masculinity and devalue femininity,"
AMY RICHARDS, FEMINIST AND AUTHOR

So Ablow quickly found support. One Million Moms, an offshoot of the conservative American Family Association, urged followers to write protest letters to J. Crew and asserted that "nontraditional activities ... can be destructive and damaging to a child's identity and self-esteem."

Just as quickly, there was a backlash from people who liked Beckett's pink toenails. Hundreds of people accepted a Facebook invitation to join "Pink Toenail Polish Day" on Monday, and Anne Fausto-Sterling, a professor of biology and gender studies at Brown University, urged Lyons' critics to "take a deep breath" and not worry if kids don't always fit a "cardboard cutout stereotype of gender roles."

"Kids explore, sample, test and learn," she wrote in a Psychology Today blog.

"They should have the freedom to do this and the strength to grow into interesting human beings."

Add Italian flavour to your life

Try this Asian-Italian take on spinach, goat cheese and roasted pepper cannelloni

East and West combine for these cannelloni, which are made by rolling a very Italian-style filling of spinach, cheese, mushrooms and roasted red peppers in Asian-style egg roll wrappers.

Ricotta cheese combined with tangy goat cheese gives the filling some bite, but if you prefer you can use all ricotta for milder results.

Here we've called for jarred marinara sauce as a convenience, but by all means use homemade sauce if you have it.

Look for fresh egg roll wrappers in the produce aisle (often near the tofu) of most supermarkets, or purchase them at Asian specialty markets.

Ingredients :

- 3 cups (750 mL) jarred marinara sauce, divided
- 1 1/2 cups (375 mL) part-skim ricotta cheese
- 4 oz (125 g) soft goat cheese
- 2 tbsp (30 mL) chopped fresh flat-leaf parsley
- 2 tbsp (30 mL) chopped fresh basil
- 1 tbsp (15 mL) cornstarch
- Salt and pepper
- 10 egg roll wrappers (6-inch/15 cm)
- 1 1/2 cups (375 mL) baby spinach
- 1 jar (12 oz/340 mL) roasted red peppers, drained and cut into (1/2-inch/1 cm) wide strips
- 10 small cremini mushrooms, thinly sliced
- 1/2 cup (125 mL) grated Parmesan cheese

Preparation:

1. Spread 1/2 cup (125 mL) of the marinara sauce in bottom of 13 x 9 inch (3.5 L) baking dish; set aside.
2. In bowl, using a fork, mix together ricotta, goat cheese, parsley, basil and cornstarch until well combined. Season with salt and pepper.
3. Lay an egg roll wrapper on work surface. In a strip along one edge, spoon about 1/4 cup (60 mL) of the cheese mixture. Top with a bit of the spinach, roasted peppers and mushrooms.
4. Roll wrapper into a tube around the fillings, moistening the edge with water and pressing it firmly to seal. Transfer to prepared baking dish. Repeat with remaining wrappers and filling.
5. Pour remaining marinara over cannelloni, to cover completely. Bake in 375 F (190 C) oven for 30 minutes. Sprinkle with Parmesan and bake for 5 to 10 minutes until golden.

Making moves with green ideas

Eco-friendly moving companies and what they offer

BEN KNIGHT
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Packing everything you own into boxes and moving from one home to another is one of the most chaotic, disruptive times in anybody's life. If ever there's a day to forget all about the environment, it's the day you move.

Intriguingly, Canada's biggest and oldest moving companies don't agree. Mayflower Canada, United Van Lines and many others now offer helpful, inexpensive green options to help you tread softly on the planet while moving to your new home.

"Moving, historically, has not been anything that's been environmentally friendly," says Lisa Hulet, vice-president of marketing for Mayflower Canada. "A lot of customers didn't know there were alternatives."

Mayflower launched its Go Green program late in 2009. Their trucks don't idle and conserve gas by not speeding. The company also offers a range of useful, eco-friendly services to make the process cleaner.

"Before the truck even arrives, the moving consultant would go into the customer's house and talk about what they need to move, and what stuff they don't want to move," Hulet explains. "We have a partnership that can safely remove all your old electronics in an environmentally friendly manner."

Mayflower has forged an alliance with disposal company 1-800-Got-Junk, for example, and 80 per cent of its pickups are recycled, or distributed to charities.

"It's about educating the consumer — and the movers themselves — to offer more environmental best practices," Hulet notes. "For the customer, it's about educating them before the moving truck even comes to the door."

She adds that moving is the only time people ever have to deal hands-on with all their accumulated possessions at one time. It's a perfect time for purging — and that's a great chance to recycle.

"One of the saddest things, I think, is that storage is one of the fastest-growing industries in North America," she concludes.

Moving tips

How to be a green mover

- Light loads Don't move things you'll never need again. Moving day is a golden opportunity to reduce and recycle.
- Waste Use blankets to protect your furniture instead of paper — more effective; less waste.

DUPED BY THE DOZEN

I've been carefully reading the ingredient lists of all my personal care products to avoid the Dirty Dozen. Then I opened a new box of toothpaste for my three-year-old daughter and it had three of the Dirty Dozen ingredients. What's the trick to avoiding these toxic chemicals?
Tara of Toronto, Ontario

QUEEN OF GREEN

LINDSAY COULTER
GREEN@METRONEWS.CA

Don't be too hard on yourself.

When we asked 6,000 Canadians to look for the Dirty Dozen in their personal care products, we learned that oral care products were the ones most likely not to have an ingredient list.

Toothpaste is tricky. It's one of those personal care products regulated as a "drug," not a cosmetic, on the basis of therapeutic claims like "tartar-fighting."

What does this mean for you and me?

Only "active ingredients" are required to be listed on the package.

Many sunscreens, antiperspirants and anti-bacterial cleansers also fall into this "drug" category, bypassing the requirement for a complete ingredient list.

For your next toothpaste purchase, look for a product that provides a full ingredient list.

Keep an eye out for triclosan (an anti-bacterial agent) and sodium laureth sulfate (SLS or SLES), which are commonly found in toothpaste, then avoid them.

In the future if you buy toothpaste with one of the Dirty Dozen by accident, take it back to the store.

Most retailers will honour a return.

You could also write to the manufacturer.

The good news is that many toothpastes on store shelves don't contain any of the Dirty Dozen. You just might have to look at a health food store or an organic grocer.

Ultimately, it would be great if we didn't have to shop defensively.

Help us get stronger laws to keep toxics out of our personal care products. Visit DavidSuzuki.org to learn how.

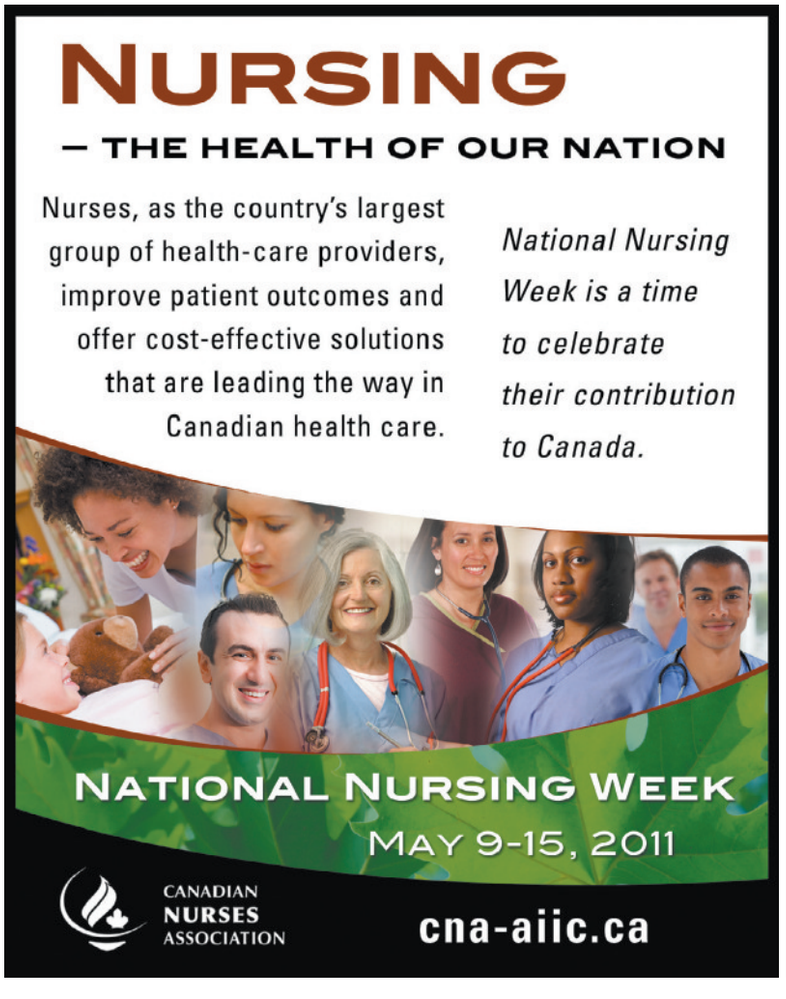
Nursing week

- "Canada's registered nurses are over a quarter of a million strong," says Judith Shamian, president of the Canadian Nurses Association. "They are involved in every aspect of our health system —research, patient advocacy, health policy and administration, public health, prevention and management of chronic disease, rehabilitation and recovery, and, of course, the special kind of direct clinical care for which we are known best."
- National Nursing Week is held during the second week of May every year to celebrate Canadian nurses and their dedication to patient care and the health-care system. The purpose is to remind everyone of the many ways nurses contribute to the well-being of Canadians.
- May 12, which is Florence Nightingale's birthday, was designated International Nurses Day in 1971. Nightingale was a celebrated English nurse known for her pioneering efforts to reform the British military health system. May 12 is also recognized as Canada Health Day. METRO



Want to become a registered nurse?

Metro checked in with the Canadian Nurses Association website to find out what's involved

Nursing offers men and women a wide range of opportunities for career challenges, travel, professional development and the personal satisfaction of working in a caring profession that helps people get well or stay healthy.

What kind of education do you need? In the Atlantic provinces, Ontario, Saskatchewan and B,C., new graduates are required to have a baccalaureate degree in nursing as their initial program. In all other provinces and territories, candidates have a choice of a diploma or a baccalaureate degree in nursing as their initial program.

Street nurse advocates for the homeless

Crowe has spent more than two decades helping street people Has confronted issues from Tent City to discrimination against homeless community

ASTRID VAN DEN BROEK
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Homeless men freezing to death. An emerging tuberculosis scare. Tent City. In life as a street nurse, Cathy Crowe has confronted some big issues — such as Tent City — and smaller ones, such as discrimination against Toronto's homeless community.

This was certainly not what she expected when she started as a street nurse some 23 years ago.

Crowe's street nursing career began after she was hired in 1988 by Street Health, an organization helping Toronto's homeless population.

"Originally much of the job focused on people with serious health problems worsened by the fact that they were homeless," says Crowe.

"So you'd have somebody admitted to hospital but then they'd be discharged once treated and back to the street or shelter. There was this never-ending cycle."

Despite frustrations such as that, she was fuelled by the thought of working on a problem that was ultimately fixable.

"We always talked about what the solution was and it's so within grasp within this country to solve it," she says.

"So I stayed. I think nurses working in the area of cancer or diabetes feel the same way. They know what the good outcome can be if the right things are done."

While she spent more than two decades helping the homeless population directly as a street nurse, today her work is more focused in the area of homelessness advocacy.

She's the volunteer executive director of the Toronto Disaster Relief Committee, which she helped found in 1998.

She's taught a course on Homelessness in Canada at Ryerson University, co-authored Dying for a Home and is currently involved in a Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms challenge in the rights to housing.

Last year, she also ran as the provincial NDP candidate for Toronto Centre after Liberal MPP George Smitherman stepped down.

Still, she keeps a hand in nursing by training others. "Nursing students are clamouring for jobs in this field, which was not the case 20 years ago. I'm contacted by students almost daily during the school year," says Crowe, who is also the grandmother of three young grandsons.

To extend that training, she also travels throughout Ontario teaching nurses about the job.

"Ultimately I would like to see that this profession isn't needed. It's hard to imagine that right now, so I'd really like to see politicians spend more time resolving the problem of homelessness or professional organizations really support the advocacy work being done," she says.

"Because otherwise we're just going to be stuck doing healthcare out of a van and finding people in the Don Valley."

Struck by a roadside bomb in Iraq five years ago, reporter Bob Woodruff is ready to tell his own story

TURNING POINT

There was a blinding flash of light and a loud explosion. ABC news anchor Bob Woodruff's life changed in an instant. In Iraq to report on U.S. troops in 2006, Woodruff was in an armoured vehicle when a roadside bomb went off leaving him with serious head injuries. In a medically induced coma for 36 days, the recovery was long and tortuous as he willed his damaged brain to heal and struggled to speak again. Now back at work at ABC as a correspondent, Bob Woodruff is coming to Canada to tell his story at the Ability and Beyond Gala in aid of March of Dimes.

"Recovery is a difficult road but don't ever give up. Lives definitely change but sometimes for the better. If things don't work out the way you thought, find another way or use a different strategy. It's not easy. Just keep thinking and planning."

I ask Mr. Woodruff for a final thought and the words come quickly from the man who has been to war and fought a personal medical battle.

"Never surrender."

Home stretch to summer

Keeping kids on track in their final months of school

RICHARD WOODBURY
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

With summer vacation visible and on the horizon, it can be tough for teens to maintain focus on their studies during the home stretch.

"It's a huge problem this time of year," says Judy Arnall, a speaker and best-selling author from Calgary. "The stretch between spring break or the Easter holidays and the end of June is probably the hardest one because the weather is getting nicer and kids want to be outside more."

For parents looking to help their kids break out of this funk, Arnall says parents must show empathy and an understanding of what their kids are going through.

"The parent's role is to show empathy and to facilitate problem solving with their teens," she says.

This requires parents to be flexible and accommodating with what their teens feel they need to do to succeed.

Arnall also recommends parents map out a plan with their kids and break it down into small chunks so that what lies ahead doesn't seem so daunting.

Even if there are disappointing academic results, parents must continue to be encouraging.

"It's important for parents to be very positive, to really appreciate what the students have done right," says Mark Federman, an education speaker from Toronto.

He says it's common for parents to focus solely on the results of a test or paper and say things like work harder or study harder. He cautions that this is not the right approach.

"The student perceives this as punishment, even though the parent may intend it as encouragement," says Federman.

This is why he encourages parents to highlight the positives because it will help boost their teen's self-esteem.

One other possible way of motivating them is through offering incentives, but this isn't a great idea.

Arnall says it sets up an expectation and a sense of entitlement Federman isn't a fan either.

"My philosophy is extrinsic motivators only work to a very limited degree because with carrots and sticks, you inevitably need bigger sticks and sweeter carrots," he says. "It's a really bad habit for people to get into to providing these extrinsic motivators."

Active learning

For teens looking to regain focus, exercise is one way of getting it:

- "Exercise releases all those endorphins and hormones to the brain and does put people in a better mood," says Judy Arnall, a speaker and best-selling author.
- Whether it's a walk around the block or a game of soccer, it's important for teens to get exercise through their preferred activity.
- If teens can't focus while studying, they should take a break. Arnall says it will get their mind off the topic at hand and they will return to their studies with much clearer focus.

Bats return, Jays still lose

Bautista and Hill rejoin team, but Tigers' Jackson sends Toronto down to defeat with two-run home run in seventh Reyes suffers third loss

TIGERS	BLUE JAYS
5	2

A day after getting no-hit, the Toronto Blue Jays had Jose Bautista and Aaron Hill back in the lineup. It didn't make much difference.

Austin Jackson hit a tiebreaking two-run homer in the seventh inning yesterday as the Detroit Tigers downed the struggling Toronto Blue Jays 5-2.

While Bautista did his thing, hitting a two-run shot of his own against Brad Penny in the third inning, the Toronto Blue Jays could muster little else.

Hill, who returned from a hamstring injury, was 1-for-4, but Adam Lind, and his 27 RBIs, was nursing a tight lower back and did not play.

"Obviously, Jose steps right back in, gives us a quality at-bat with a two-run homer," Blue Jays manager John Farrell said. "I thought Aaron swung the bat well with the base hit and still trying to get some consistent timing going. Those two, it's good to see them back in the lineup.

"Other than that, we were unable to string many quality at-bats together and really didn't have many opportunities to bunch some hits together or try to generate much offence."

Mavs sweep Jackson into retirement

So long, Phil. So long, chances for another Lakers three-peat.

Hello, Western Conference finals for Dirk Nowitzki and the Dallas Mavericks.

Jason Terry tied an NBA post-season record with nine three-pointers and the Mavericks matched a league playoff mark with 20 threes on their way to a 122-86 victory over the Lakers yesterday and a sweep of their second-round series against the most successful coach in NBA history and the two-time defending champions.

Jackson left the court with a tight smile, accepting hugs and handshakes from Dallas coach Rick Carlisle, Jason Kidd and Mark Cuban. It was the first time he had been swept in his 21 post-seasons on the sideline. It hadn't happened to Bryant and the Lakers since 1999, the year before the Zen Master arrived in Los Angeles.

While the 65-year-old Jackson would have preferred going out with a 12th title, this exit does nothing to tarnish his legacy. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Canucks trying to avoid mistakes

CANUCKS PREDATORS

▶ Time: 8 p.m.
Channel: CBC

The Nashville Predators will be the opponent when the Vancouver Canucks are forced to play a game they hoped to avoid.

But the team the Canucks don't want beating them tonight in Game 6 of the Western Conference semifinal is themselves.

Vancouver mistakes, turnovers and bad bounces helped give the Predators a 4-3 victory Saturday that allowed Nashville to stay alive in the playoffs. The Canucks lead the series 3-2, but know they must reduce their errors to avoid a Game 7 back in Vancouver Wednesday.

"We have to make sure that one mistake doesn't turn into two," Ryan Kesler said through swollen lips prior to the Canucks boarding an airplane yesterday for the long flight to Nashville.

"It's a game of mistakes out there. You are going to make mistakes, no one is perfect. For us, we have to try and eliminate the mistakes. Make one, not two."

Kesler lost a tooth and needed stitches to close a gash on his chin after being hit in the face with a puck Saturday. He returned to score his second goal of the night in a losing cause.

The gritty centre has been the best Canuck in the playoffs. He has scored five goals in the last three games and been a dominating physical force.

The Predators return home believing they can still advance to the next round of the playoffs.

"We knew we weren't going to quit and it's far from over," said defenceman Shea Weber. "They've got to come out with their best effort next game and we've got to be ready." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bombers take top linebacker in draft

The Winnipeg Blue Bombers selected St. Francis Xavier linebacker Henoc Muamba first overall in the CFL Canadian college draft yesterday.

The six-foot, 230-pound Muamba was Canadian university football's top defensive player last season.

But the native of Mississauga is expected to contribute immediately on Winnipeg's special teams as he learns the nuances of the Bombers' defence.

Winnipeg secured the first overall selection for the first time since 1975 after posting a league-worst 4-14 record last year.

The move wasn't a surprise as Muamba was in Winnipeg yesterday so the CFL club could unveil its the first overall pick in the Manitoba capital.

"I'm excited," Muamba told TSN. "I'm ready to go back to work and make an impact on the team."

The Edmonton Eskimos followed by taking Rice offensive lineman Scott Mitchell at No. 2.

The six-foot-five, 295-pound Mitchell, a Montreal native who grew up in Ottawa, was the top-ranked draft prospect by the CFL's Scouting Bureau and had been mentioned as a first-overall candidate.

The Calgary Stampeders moved up to No. 3 in a trade with the B.C. Lions and selected Calgary Dinos receiver Anthony Parker.

The six-foot-two, 215-pound Parker struggled mightily in Calgary's 29-2 Vanier Cup loss to Laval but bounced back with a stellar showing at the CFL's evaluation camp.

Calgary head coach and GM John Hufnagel said Parker has been on his radar screen for some time.

"He has been," Hufnagel said. "There are a lot of quality receivers in the draft and we wanted to make sure we came out of the first round with a receiver."

Argo trade

The Saskatchewan Roughriders dealt the seventh overall pick to Toronto for the 12th and 27th selections. The Argonauts then looked to the future with Ottawa native Tyler Holmes, a six-foot-four, 305-pound offensive lineman who is returning to Tulsa this fall and is expected to garner NFL interest next season.
